ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

Through recognition that the Company's activities can impact on the local and regional environment, LEC Marine (Klyne) Ltd is committed to protecting the environment through improving environmental performance and reducing environmental impacts in the following ways:

- By understanding and committing to comply with legal and other requirements
- By carrying out a review of our activities and identifying opportunities for the reduction of environmental impacts
- By raising staff awareness of environmental issues and promoting individual good practice
- By making efficient use of water, energy and other natural resources
- By taking all reasonable steps to prevent pollution to land sea and air in both local and wider environments
- By working with our suppliers to recognise impacts of their activities and services
- By improving waste management and identifying opportunities for recycling materials

The Company understands the sensitivities of its customers, including the pressures of growing and changing statutory and public concern about environmental issues and wishes to assist them in complying with environmental best practice. The Company is working toward gaining approval to ISO 14001:2015.
